

EUGENE FIELD DEAD.

THE WELL KNOWN POET DIES SUDDENLY.

Stricken by Heart Disease While Asleep—Sketch of His Career—Won His Reputation in the West—Was a Great Admirer of Little Children.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Eugene Field, poet, story writer and newspaper man, whose works were read and admired in all parts of this country, died in bed at his home in Buena Park, a suburb of this city, about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, from heart disease.

Eugene Field, newspaper worker, poet and friend of the children, was born in St. Louis, Mo., September 21, 1850. He was the son of Roswell Martin and Francis (Reed) Field. His father was a distinguished lawyer and one of the counsel of Dred Scott in the famous slave case. His mother died in his infancy, and his childhood was passed in the care of his cousin, Miss French, at Amherst, Mass. At the age of 18 he entered Williams college, but, his father dying soon after, his guardian placed him in Knox college at Galesburg, Ill. He remained there for eighteen months, and completed his education in the Missouri state university. In 1871 he made a six months' tour of the continent, and in 1872 entered upon his career as a newspaper worker, receiving his first employment on the St. Louis Journal. In 1873 he married Miss Julia C. Stock of St. Joseph. She was the sister of a college friend, and it was a case of love at first sight. Many of the hours of his courtship were passed in "Lovers' Lane" at St. Joseph, which he has memorialized in verse. Shortly after his marriage he became a reporter on the St. Louis Evening Journal, and in a short time was advanced to city editor. In 1875 he went to the St. Joseph Gazette, but soon returned to St. Louis and from 1876 to 1880 was an editorial writer on the St. Louis Times-Journal. In 1881 he accepted the position of editorial writer on the Kansas City Times. In 1881 he went to Denver, where he became managing editor of the Tribune. It was while on the latter paper that he attained his reputation as a writer of droll, humorous prose, and dainty verse. In 1882 he went to Chicago, accepting a position on the Morning News, now the Record, with which paper he was connected without interruption until the day of his death.

The year 1889-90 he spent with his family in Europe, where he extended his wide acquaintance with literary people, and was the recipient of many flattering attentions. Field was a careful but prolific writer. His published works are "The Holy Cross and Other Tales," "Little Book of Profitable Tales," "Little Book of Western Verse," "Second Book of Verse," "With Trumpet and Drum," and, in collaboration with his brother Roswell, "Echoes From the Sabine Farm, a Metrical Translation of Horace."

Mr. Field left a widow and five children. Mr. Field was a kind husband and affectionate father, passionately fond not only of his own children, but of all the children of the world, and his home life was delightful.

MULVANE IN CONTROL.

The Mortgages on the Topeka Capital Consolidated—Hudson to Go.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 5.—The announcement was made this afternoon that John R. Mulvane had purchased C. C. Baker's $15,000 mortgage against the Topeka Capital and had also purchased Mrs. P. B. Plumb's $10,000 mortgage against the paper. This places the paper in Mr. Mulvane's hands, as he holds the only other mortgage of any considerable amount against the paper.

This is generally held to mean that Major Hudson will soon be retired from the editorship, but the future of the paper is still problematical.

The paper will continue Republican, but the opinion prevails that it will be for J. R. Burton for United States Senator. The Mulvanes have been for Burton all along.

Dave Mulvane is a nephew of John R., and was Burton's manager in the campaign last winter. As John R. Mulvane put up money enough to save the Capital from wreck and ruin by unfriendly creditors, it is natural that he should have something to say about its policy. "With the Capital at Burton's back," said a prominent Republican politician last night, "the other Senatorial candidates will have to hustle."

LIKE ANCIENT TIMES.

Ten Heretics Burned in Mexico by a Fanatical Judge.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The World contains additional details of the burning of ten heretics by the Judge of the Mexican town of Texacapa. The dispatch says: As soon as the news reached Mollange, the principal town in the district, the municipal president and minor officials, with an escort of over sixty men, armed with rifles, went to Texacapa, where they found everybody in the public square executing grotesque dances in honor of the virgin of Guadalupe around the ruins of the jail, a small building solidly constructed, close to the parish church. In this jail previous to Saturday had been confined Nicholas Hernandez, Martin Santiago, Jose Manuel, Casper Hernandez, Juan Tomas, Juan Tomas second, Maria Juana, Maria Magdalena, Maria Concepcion and an infant child. They had been rudely hustled from their homes at dead of night on the extraordinary charge preferred by the auxiliary town judge that their lives were an evil in the sight of God, and that they were enemies of the faith and heretics whom God had ordered through his holy saint to be consumed by fire.

The auxiliary judge related this with the utmost sangfroid to the authorities. He added that God had wrought astonishing miracles to conform what the saint had told him in the vision. Said the judge: "I obeyed the divine command and ordered out my alguaciles (constables), and we took these sinners from their beds and dragged them in the darkness of night, weeping and wailing, to the jail. When they were locked securely in, I ordered the alguaciles to set the building on fire."

Twenty-one arrests were made, although the fanatical mob threatened death to the authorities. The prisoners, securely bound around the arms and chained together, were marched to Mollange, where a judicial investigation will take place. The whole population of Texacapa appears gone mad. All believe the auxiliary judge was commissioned by the Almighty and the saints to destroy evil-doers. They point to the pile of bones on which they profess to see miraculously traced outline forms of the saints who, on advising the judge to burn heretics, left their images. The community is nothing but an open air madhouse.

STRIKE PROBABLE.

Dissatisfied Coal Miners at Weir City Send the Operators an Ultimatum.

WEIR CITY, Kan., Nov. 5.—At a mass meeting of the miners of Cherokee county, the coal operators were given until the 9th to grant the demands of the men for a raise of the mining scale and a reduction in the price of powder. If some concessions are not made there will be a strike. The prevailing price in this district since the strike of '93 has been 50 cents a ton, mine run, in summer and 50 cents in winter. This year the companies refuse to pay the winter price, which should have gone into effect September 1, and are still paying only 50 cents. Delegates from each mine visited their own companies and asked for 55 1/2 cents and 60 cents, with a reduction of 50 cents a keg on powder. No satisfactory answer was obtained from any of the companies and an ultimatum was sent the operators as above stated.
